

Biographical Sketch for Bill McCargo

Bill currently serves as Executive Director of the Atlanta Education Fund. Previously he was Director of Community Relations for Cisco's major sites where he directed the Community Relations efforts of the company worldwide, including setting of the site strategies, and coordinating efforts across the company on national initiatives. He also served as the Vice President of the Scientific-Atlanta Foundation where he led the collaboration efforts of the company throughout Atlanta with Education, Health and Human Services, Arts, and Civic organizations

Bill was responsible for coordinating Scientific Atlanta Foundation's philanthropic efforts through the setting of the strategic plan and translating that plan into specific contributions that are made to over 200 educational institutions, health and human services, arts and civic organizations. He recently retired from Scientific Atlanta after 30 years of service. Bill's passion for education and experience in collaborative community efforts is a natural fit as he now takes the helm at the Atlanta Education Fund.
